

Artists in Fourth Grade have been working on a print project. They are transforming drawings inspired by the senses onto styrene plates and using ink plates and brayers to create relief prints. We will continue this project over the next few weeks creating individual print pieces and a larger scale collaboration piece.

Artists who are interested are encouraged to visit the Andy Warhol Museum where visitors learn about and go through the steps of the complete silkscreen printing process. Artists can also visit AIR's Youth Open Studio on Wednesday evenings with other young artists to create, experiment, and express themselves in a print studio.
